NEW YORK, March 31, 2010 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ ----Landing the right position within the financial sector is the ultimate goal of any new graduate with an eye on Wall Street; the question is can it be done with or without an MBA? The AnEx Advantage Training and Associate Program (<http://www.anexadvantage.com/>) is providing hands on learning to future financial leaders both from leading MBA programs and those from nontraditional institutions; specialized firms are biting.

The AnEx Advantage Program initially launched its training program to offer a comprehensive training component not always realized within educational programs - real life situations. By offering training that includes hands on learning with industry leaders they have been able to bridge the gap of concept to reality. This engaged learning has led graduates into positions directly within the financial market.

Niche programs in finance exist within academic institutions, but reliable training by industry experts outside of academia could place students with an edge in the hiring pool. "We didn't set our program up to be a replica of the traditional MBA program," states Paul Pignataro, Founder, AnEx Advantage. "We wanted to offer students an opportunity to learn from leaders in the financial industry, gain hands on experience, and work directly within firms who are providing financial services in real time."

Financial industry leaders are looking for the right candidates, and understanding the nuances of a particular field is becoming important for our future in finance. AnEx Advantage offers students intensive training in accounting, consolidated financial statements, mergers and acquisitions, leveraged buyouts, valuation and introduction into the analysis of financial markets. By coupling the popular Analyst Exchange training with the new AnEx Advantage hands-on component, students are taking their new skills into internships within premier financial institutions. Through comprehensive training they can either jump right in where they are after graduation, add to their MBA, or transition from one field to another. AnEx Advantage is able to work with students where they are and help them get where they are going.

AnEx Advantage is offering intensive full or part-time training and internship programs on an ongoing basis. Applicants can send resumes to apply@anexadvantage.com or apply directly online at anexadvantage.com.
